OVERVIEW
Introduction
Looks at the development of multimedia and web-based applications with respect to principles of human-computer interface design. Lectures cover information design, interaction design, screen design and issues related to educational and commercial software and web sites. Human-computer interaction, user-centred design, usability issues and user evaluations are the basis of both lecture content and practical exercises. Students complete both paper-based and web-based design tasks as part of the practical requirement of this unit.

Objectives
On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:
1. explain the differences in people's ability to learn in terms of human development, learning styles etc. and how these factors should be considered in the development of software
2. describe how screens should be structured and presented
3. describe specific features, issues, and constraints in the use of web-based forms
4. explain the processes involved in the development of software such as screen design, storyboard design, and field testing

Generic Skills

The university has defined a set of generic graduate attributes expected in its graduates. http://www.admin.utas.edu.au/academic/acservices/meetings/Senate/Appendix/3_01D1.doc Your course is designed to enable you to develop generic skills that are valued in, and expected of, graduates. These are skills that you will need to develop over time. Hence you are encouraged to look for opportunities, as you study each unit, to reflect on and improve these skills.

In this unit you will have the opportunity to develop your team-work and communication skills.

LEARNING AND TEACHING

Approach to Learning

You are expected to spend about 130 hrs studying in this unit - this includes attendance at scheduled teaching sessions. (For a 13 week semester this is, on average, 10 hr/wk.) This is the amount of study time that the 'typical' student will need to reach the level of competence and understanding required to fulfil the unit objectives.

You are expected to:

- attend all scheduled lectures and tutorials, unless otherwise notified by the unit coordinator
- prepare for, and actively participate in lectures and tutorials
- complete the assigned learning tasks
- review what has been learnt
- complete assessment items and submit them on time
- access and be familiar with the information and resources available on the unit website
- seek help from teaching staff if you have any questions or difficulties in studying this unit

You are encouraged to read the university's Code of Conduct for Teaching and Learning. Part A describes the 'Responsibility of the University to Students' and part B describes the 'Responsibilities of Students to the University'.
